PLEASE REVIEW THE REQUIRED EXPERIENCE AND TRAINING:

Limited approval in Nuclear Medicine

 Limited approval may be granted if a position of need is established and a certified nuclear medicine specialist is not recruited after a reasonable period of time. Physicians with limited approval may practice in-vivo nuclear medicine, but practice is limited to the sites on the initial application.*

You are a certified diagnostic radiologist licensed to practice in Alberta who has:

1. Completed a minimum of one year of nuclear medicine training in a recognized teaching program, and
2. A letter from the preceptor, attesting to your competence.

PLEASE NOTE: Your program provider must submit documentation to confirm your training and competence before the College can process your application. Please outline training time chronologically in months.
